Subject: System Inventory

You can see we didn't start you off with any published topology or documentation. As a result, you have no clear idea of what resources you currently have available or the details of your environment. That means you should inventory every one of your systems: detail the hardware, the applications, the type of accounts they possess, and the services they offer.

You have 90 minutes to provide a summary report of all that you find. The submitted report should be clear, organized, and friendly to read by non-IT management and stakeholders. However, future injects and/or tasks may depend on you having a more detailed report at your disposal so keep the full report handy. We all expect this will be a living document and updated to reflect changes to your systems. You will likely be asked to submit an updated summary later.

Please note: we will be allowing the inventory to be submitted late with a 50% penalty. Late is better than never but try to get it submitted before the deadline.

Thank you.
